2012 Predictions

Introduction: We all look forward to the start of a new year with great anticipation. And many of us have high hopes for the future, both personally and collectively. I share the predictions for 2012, as they were given to me without interpretation. All things can be changed through prayer and intention and my hope is that you keep this in mind as you read. But I also share thoughts I have through spiritual understanding concerning 2012, and all the changes that are coming. I wish you the best for the New Year, and hold a positive light for all of us as we move forward in this new energy.

1. Illusions of Time

- The entire year of 2012 will be so different than any other year we have experienced. There will be major shifts in time. Each person will experience it differently. But many people will just feel like the day is different (such as the day after Thanksgiving being Friday. But it seems like Saturday... and the whole weekend feels strange). This will happen more frequently. Others will get the whole month confused or actually miss several months. Scheduling events and making plans in general, will become more difficult. And more confusion just following your plans. The move into the fifth dimension is wavering back and forth much more this coming year, so that is the reason for us being confused with time concepts.

2. Cyber-Tech Episodes

- Start making hard copies of all your important computer information. Many computer devices will be going hay-wire and you don't want to lose anything important. I know, authorities always say to "backup" your files. But I feel the chaotic energies, especially from the sun flares and other shifting vibrations of the universe will take down major cyberspace connections, wiping out very important data (not just your computer). Don't get so complacent with your computer, iPod or tablet, that you trust all your documents and files to conveniently be stored there without mishap. It can happen in a split second, and be gone forever.

- As another point to the computer malfunction: you may not be able to continue doing things easily (paying bills automatically, accessing your bank account through internet, ordering products on-line; Texting, too can be cumbersome). Even land-line telephones will be affected. This could even disrupt anything with computer-reliant technology: cash registers in supermarkets and shopping malls, gasoline stations, television! Be sure to have cash on hand.
- A return to simple living and living simply. As a result of the cyber-tech episodes, we will revert to playing board games with family members (this could be a good thing!) eating home grown foods, less absorbed with current fashions and living much more simply.

We are forced to make space for this new energy. We will learn to naturally trim our lives to accommodate this new way of being.

3. Government and Big Business:

- Government
 - a) Even as democrats look for their presidential candidate, many problems will continue with republicans during their run for the presidency, including more scandals.
 - b) The rudimentary evolution of a third party, springing from the Tea Party concept, much more refined and alternative. Eventually, this will become a stronger, full-fledged party.
 - c) I see Obama being in for a second term, with more solidarity from congress, than the first term.
 - d) More scandals and clearing in the corrupt government that we never even thought could be corrupt!
- Large corporations and big business

Large corporations and big business will crumble. Conglomerates will divide into smaller, more effective businesses. Simplicity will be a beneficial thing here too. The big corporations to watch concerning this will be: Sony, General electric and major pharmaceutical companies.

4. Fear Mongers

Fear mongers will run rampant in 2012. This will be the last attempt to keep the third dimension from moving fully into the fifth. From every direction you will see negative thinkers trying to hold onto the work-a-day world, staying in control of our minds and guiding us into their way of thinking. It is so important to remain open to free thinking, and separating from anything that requires control of any kind.

“Established truth”, is not truth, but is created with “logical” thinking. Think with your heart, not your mind. Open yourself to free-thinking, without presumed consequences.
